PRIZES AWARDED TO HIGH STUDENTS ANNOUNCED MONDAY

"Enumerators Contest," Open to the Public also Begins Saturday; all Invited to Join

WHY I never knew they made that in La Crosse!

Isn't it wonderful when you stop to think of all the things made in La Crosse?

These two exclamations were made by 96 persons out of every hundred who gazed with wide open eyes at the main street store windows, which means about one window in every store on the street, where the products made in La Crosse were on exhibition.

Made in La Crosse week was officially opened Saturday afternoon. A band parading the north side announced to the people that the week had been opened. Then the band paraded.

RETAIL MERCHANTS, ATTENTION!

The retail merchants of the city are hereby specially requested to co-operate with the prize committee of Made in La Crosse Week in assisting purchasers, who desire to enter in the Purchasers of La Crosse Goods contest, to carry out the details of this contest. Regular store receipts should be issued to purchasers, and the products purchased specifically itemized. The invoices or slips on which the purchased goods are itemized must bear the name of the store at which purchases are made, and the date of purchases.

Main street and added considerable zest and spirit to the occasion. At 2 p. m. all stores were requested to display in their windows the products made in La Crosse. The public was invited to feast its eyes on the displays.

Plows, rubber boots and rubber shoes, leather shoes, soft drinks, kitchen utensils, clothing, machinery and tools, dairy products, food products, furniture, house dresses, candies—these were some of the products that one picked out at random while inspecting the many exhibits.

The Saturday afternoon shopping crowd had an extra attraction downtown and there was not a single main street window that was not scrutinized carefully and extensively by the window shoppers. It was a lesson in home trade, the why and the wherefor, for Mr. and Mrs. La Crosse.

Auto Advertise Week

Yellow cards bearing the words, "Buy La Crosse Products," appear in every window. Smaller cards, carrying the same message, have been pasted on the windshields of countless automobiles. No one in La Crosse will have any excuse for not knowing that this is "Made in La Crosse Week," declare the promoters of the event.

To increase interest in the displays prizes will be awarded to the person enumerating the largest number of La Crosse made products exhibited in the various store windows. The contest started Saturday and continues up to closing time May 27. Returns must be filed with E. G. Von Wald, care Von Wald-Redesheim, 422 Main street, not later than 6 p. m., May 31, marked "Enumerators' Contest."

NEW NATIONAL ORGANIZATION TO BE FORMED BY BOLTERS

Charge Unfair Tactics on Part of Chicago Association

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Formation of a new national automobile association was under way here Saturday by state automobile clubs of Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky, Texas and Indiana, following the split in the annual convention of the American Automobile association Friday night over a parliamentary technicality when the organizations withdrew from the national body.

Disruption of the association resulted from a dispute between the Ohio and Chicago clubs which challenged the seating of each other's delegations.

The Chicago Motor club and the Missouri Automobile club, with other state bodies, remained in the American Automobile association and continued in session Saturday.

H. K. Stormont of the Indiana delegation declared it was repeatedly charged on the floor of the convention that the Chicago Motor club was invading other states' territory in solicitation of membership for purposes which he claimed were commercial. He said this was one of the reasons of the split.

The servants held them off for several hours, but the attackers finally entered carrying cans of petrol and set fire to the building.

Disorders continued here unabated Saturday afternoon. Two drivers were shot in the railway cattle pens, one being killed. According to word received here the northern bank at Cushendall, County Antrim, was burned and the postoffice raided.

GANG OF POSTAL THIEVES TRAPPED BY PSEUDO "PAL"

Inspector Associated Himself With Plotters and Uncovered their Scheme

SEVEN ARRESTED AS RESULT OF EXPOSE OF OFFICIAL

Capture Believed to Clear up Many Unsolved Thefts

WASHINGTON.—Acting Postmaster General Bartlett left Washington Saturday for New York with the announced purpose of thoroughly reorganizing the New York city postoffice in consequence of the arrest of several postal employees said to have been involved in numerous schemes looking to the looting of the mails.

NEW YORK.—By The Associated Press.—A postoffice holdup, surpassing in daring any of the recent registered mail thefts, would have been perpetrated at the city hall postoffice, on Saturday but for the work of a postoffice inspector who grew a beard, consorted with the plotters and uncovered their scheme.

This was the statement on Friday of Postoffice Inspector Doran in making public the details of the arrest of seven men—six of them present or past postoffice employees.

He asserted that their capture would clear up the registered mail theft of July 13, when $1,477,000 in Liberty bonds were stolen from the mails and would aid in solving a heretofore undisclosed theft of $40,000 in securities, and might go far toward clearing up the $2,000,000 mail truck holdup in lower Broadway last October.

Daring Plans Laid

Plans had been laid—and were to have been carried out in daylight—for the holdup and robbing of the entire registered mail section of the city hall station, through which millions in securities flow daily from the Wall street financial zone, Inspector Doran said.

The name of the inspector who uncovered the plot with his "bad man" beard and his plausible manner withheld. It was said he succeeded in getting himself "counted in" on the proposed holdup and talked it over in detail with the others in his supposed "den," which he had wired with telephone devices.

Learn of Old Theft

The seven captives taken Thursday night were confronted with transcripts of a telephone record on Friday in the presence of the boarded inspector and some of them are alleged to have confessed.

So completely were the mail robbers taken in by their new found "pal" that, Inspector Doran said, he could recount almost every step taken in the July 13 Liberty bond theft.

The chief actor in this theft, he said, was Morris Steinberg, 19 year old clerk in the registry department, who had some means of ascertaining when valuable packages were to come to the postoffice from the federal reserve bank.

Pal Flees With Bonds

He knew in advance of the big shipment of Liberty bonds which was made on July 13 and laid the punch aside when it was delivered. A few minutes later, it is alleged, he took the punch to a small closet on the third floor, where Edward Fogel, a confederate, had been hiding for several hours.

Tossing the punch into the closet, he stroled nonchalantly back to his post, leaving Fogel to rip it open, extract the package of bonds and slip quietly out of the building.

Steinberg was suspected at the time but care was taken to make him think he was not and a short time later occasion was found to drop him from the service for a minor infraction of the rules.

Meets Crook "Friends."

The inspectors continued to watch him and four months ago the "bearded gent" managed to scrape an acquaintance at the confectionery store Steinberg and Fogel had opened.

Taking a room in the lower east side as its "hang out," the inspector installed a speech recording instrument and invited them to visit him. It was not long until he had met the other five men alleged to be members of the gang and was swapping stories with them about mail robbing exploits—while fellow inspectors recorded the conversations in an adjoining room.

Trap Finally Sprung

Finally the gangsters let the "bearded gent" in on the city hall station plot—and the swoop came.

Arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Hitchcock on Friday, the seven prisoners were held in bail ranging from $5,000 to $25,000 each. Steinberg, Fogel, Abraham, Goldsmith and Gustav Gales were held in $25,000; Irving Weinstein in $15,000, and Gustav Feldman and Harry Shapiro in $5,000 each.

PROPOSED MERGER OF STEEL CONCERNS MAY FALL THROUGH

Predict Abandonment of Plan With Withdrawal of the Youngstown Company

OTHER FIVE COMPANIES MEET TO PLAN COURSE OF ACTION

New Combinations Will Result, is Belief

NEW YORK.—Abandonment of the proposed merger of independent steel companies was generally forecast Saturday as a result of the withdrawal of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company from the six company combine. J. A. Campbell, president of the Youngstown, previously had been agreed upon as head of the proposed merger, serving as chairman of the board of directors and chairman of the executive committee.

Executives of the remaining five companies—Midvale Steel & Ordnance, Republic Iron & Steel, Inland Steel, Steel & Tube of America and Brier Hill Steel—are expected to confer with Mr. Chadbourne and representatives of Kuhn, Loeb & Company, bankers, to decide upon a course of action.

Latest developments in the merger situation have resulted in a flood of rumors concerning possible new combinations.

PRESBYTERIANS IN ATTACK ON SUNDAY MOVIES AND GAMES

DES MOINES, Ia.—By The Associated Press.—Sunday golf, movies, baseball, window displays, airplane flights and spread of doctrines of the Seventh Day Adventists were all targets for a vigorous attack Saturday in the annual report of the Committee on Sabbath Observance, submitted to the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

California and the Pacific coast in general will be the scene of the next clean-up campaign of the Lord's day alliance and the Presbyterian Committee for the closing of all dispensable Sunday enterprises, Dr. H. L. Bowby declared in the report. He declared that particularly urgent calls for aid against Sunday work and amusements are being received from Havana, from South America, the Philippines and Alaska.

The arrival of Vice President Coolidge late this afternoon over shadowed other events on the program.

REPORT OF JACK'S ENGAGEMENT JOKE ON THE REPORTERS

NEW YORK.—There is not a reason in the whole wide world for any comely widow in the United States either to cry or take poison. Dismissing the announcement made Friday night on his return from Europe, by Teddy Hayes, his secretary, that the king of heavyweights was engaged to a "Miss Edith Rockwell of Boulder Col." Jack Dempsey Saturday asserted that it was simply a joke on the reporters who always were forecasting his marriage.

"I see by the papers that Rockwell went well," said the be-moaned champion, hitting his derby and winking with his unimpaired eye, "but really that was a 'boulder' as we say in Lunnnon, and not in Colorado. I have not thought of marrying yet."

PARENT-TEACHER BODIES OF STATE MEET ON FRIDAY

Uplift of School Standards Advocated in Resolutions Passed by Convention

FOND DU LAC, Wis.—The State Parent-Teachers' association in convention here on Friday adopted resolutions seeking uplift generally in educational affairs for both instructor and pupil. The convention favored clean well ventilated school rooms, good teachers, adequate salaries, instruction in fundamentals, six and one-half hour day for schools, more physical exercise for boys and girls, and regulated hours for school dances and entertainments.

Other resolutions urged that parents instruct children to respect property and health laws and declared for repression of movies tending to lower the level of the marriage institution and depicting scenes of crimes.

A request was made to the national association to ask congress to back up suitable child labor laws. Licensing of public dance halls and regulation of the nature of public dances and the hours, also was urged.

The convention laid on the table after extended debate a suggestion from the Fond du Lac delegation that school finances be placed entirely in the hands of the school board, thereby divorcing school matters from politics. It was decided, however, that a committee be appointed to investigate the matter and report at a later date.

The name of the Wisconsin Congress of Mothers' and Parent-Teachers' association was changed to the Wisconsin Parent-Teacher association at the morning session.

Directors are Elected
Mrs. George Abbey of this city was elected a director to fill an unexpired term.

Four other directors were chosen for three years as follows: Mrs. T. P. Gantt of Milwaukee, Miss Evelyn Weed of Balsom Lake, Mrs. J. H. McNeal of Beloit and Mrs. F. L. Paxon of Madison. Mrs. F. L. Schlecht of Ashland was elected a vice president to fill an unexpired term.

CRANE SWINGS TARDY BAY STATE SOLON TO DEPARTING STEAMER

WASHINGTON—House friends of Representative A. P. Andrew of Massachusetts put him in the dark-devil aerial class on learning how he caught the Mayflower at Quantico Friday night as the presidential yacht was returning to Washington with a congressional delegation.

As he reached the dock the ganplan was up and the Mayflower was preparing to get under way. A big crane with a long arm was standing there idle.

"Put your foot in this hook," said an officer, "hold tight to the cable with your hands and we'll swing you aboard."

And in a moment the crane had planted Mr. Andrew safely aboard. All the damage was repaired with a shine.

JOHNSON HAS AMENDMENT TO CHILD LABOR BILL

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A joint resolution proposing an amendment to the federal legislation giving congress the right to regulate or prohibit the employment of children under 18 years of age, was introduced in the senate Friday by Senator Johnson, republican, California. The amendment Mr. Johnson said, was proposed in an effort to meet the situation resulting from the recent decision of the supreme court holding the child labor law unconstitutional.

CEASE FROM ANGER

CEASE from anger and forsake wrath: first not thyself in any way to do evil.—Psalms, 37: 8.

Good Business

MERCHANTS and manufacturers of La Crosse, co-operating in Made in La Crosse Week for the purpose of informing the public of its opportunities to occupy its spending power at home, are doing a service for the community quite as much as for themselves. It is good business for us all in the sense that good business always consists of transactions in which all parties to it are benefitted. And all parties involved in Made in La Crosse Week, including the public, are obviously advantaged by any results which may be felt from its activities. The advantage to merchants and manufacturers is plain, and it takes only the simplest thinking to perceive wherein lies a very tangible and useful benefit to the rest of the city.

There are, approximately, 150 manufacturing and jobbing concerns in La Crosse. They employ together about 5,000 men and women, in normal times. Their weekly payroll runs around $100,000 a week. The success and prosperity of a group upon which so large a percentage of the people of La Crosse depends for life and comfort must be a matter of first importance to the whole community. For the 5,000 men and women workers of course represent only a part of the number directly dependent upon the business success of manufacturers and jobbers of La Crosse. A large proportion of the 5,000 are breadwinners of families, all of whose members are of course not less vitally interested in the industries than the heads of the families. Made in La Crosse Week to all of these has the direct interest of an enterprise which will, if successful, help to maintain their employment, stimulate the prosperity of their affairs and assist in bringing to the industry in which they find the means of livelihood the possibility of improved standards of living.

It means the same thing to the rest of us who are not directly employed in the manufacturing and jobbing industry. Improved trade enjoyed by local manufacturers means improved employment. That means more people earning money—more customers for local merchants, more opportunity for employment in every line. One does not need to labor the point. It is patent that better business for any considerable group of local citizens means better business for all in the natural process of community trade and commerce.

So La Crosse made goods appeal not only as a matter of loyalty and local patriotism, but as a strictly practical affair of enlightened self-interest. There is satisfaction to La Crosse people in buying what is made in La Crosse; but there is, more importantly, the certainty that in doing so one is giving one's self a boost. One gets one's money's worth of goods that sell in competition all over the world, and as interest on the transaction the knowledge that a bit of the purchase price will ultimately be rebated in the form of better business or a better job for Number One. There are three parties to the deal—the merchant, the maker or jobber, and the buying public—and each profits. That is the essence of good business.

No Progress

IT may be doubted whether any one was particularly impressed by Lloyd George's drum-thumping panegyric on the accomplishments of the Genoa conference. Displayed even to the best of his eloquence, the British premier could find but one concrete achievement—an eight-months' truce—two advisory reports that have no great prospect of being acted upon, and the postponement of all the real problems before the conference. If this be sufficient to mark a historic milestone on the pathway of peace, truly history of post-war Europe moves at a snail's pace.

The outstanding result of the conference was carefully ignored by the valedictorians at the closing session. That outstanding result, surely, was the emergence of Russia from the post of humble, outlawed beggar without the gates of political power to a position of brutal eminence. The record of Genoa is chiefly the record of the success of Tchitcherine's audacity. The astute, unconventional bolshevik carried the battle to his opponents from the opening round.

He came not hat in hand to wait for crumbs, but club in hand to compel concessions. It smashed up the conference, this attitude, but it wrecked also the entente between France and England. It divided all the allies. At the close of the conference Russia was distinctly on top of the heap from the strategic viewpoint. How well Tchitcherine will be able to exploit his advantage remains to be seen.

The Russian business has been postponed to The Hague meeting next month. But there is no evidence available at the close of the Genoa meeting to indicate that things will go better at The Hague. Russia was defiant, France belligerent, Italy and England anxious. The only new element in the situation is the notice from the United States that she will not take any part in the coming meeting unless Russia rescinds her virtual repudiation of war debts, guarantees private property rights for foreigners and makes no claim for recognition. With the European powers hopelessly divided, with a practical entente with Germany promising considerable foreign capital and organizing skill to push economic revival in Russia, there seems to be little reason to expect Russia to meet American demands. Russia would doubtless like a loan from America, but this is not offered her. Will Russia surrender the position which has made her representatives the dominant group at Genoa on the off-chance of financial aid from America? There is nothing to inspire the belief.

Frank H. Simonds, expert on European affairs, has said that Genoa was invented by Lloyd George to bring him a diplomatic success with which to go before the British people at a general election and renew his lease on the government. It is a poor success that he brings home—an eight months' truce—and beyond the spell of the prime minister's oratory it looks to be singularly barren of political nutriment. But it will not do to reason too directly therefrom to impending retirement for Lloyd George. He is a consummate politician. He is a wonderful explainer. He has a powerful and magnetic personality. And there is nowhere in England a man of half his stature in domestic or foreign affairs. Genoa was a failure, but Lloyd George has survived many failures. If there is an election in England, the odds are still on the Welsh champion.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

R. W. Davis of Bangor will be elected chairman of the county board when that body meets for organization tomorrow according to predictions of his friends. Opposition is expected to develop but it will likely not be strong enough to prevent his election.

Aroused over the action of the war department which ordered the dredging of the Mississippi river opposite Dakota and Dredgach, Minn., following the building of a wing dam which shut off the west channel of the river several of the freeholders on the Wisconsin side opposite the two towns are preparing to go before the next state legislature to urge the passage of an act permitting them to sue the United States government for $25,000 damages. A stretch of ten or twelve miles on the Wisconsin side has been overflowed by the changing of the channel and the farmers claim this has cheated them of $25,000 worth of land besides rendering many acres in the vicinity unfit for farming.

Whitney Nichols of the Victoria has started up in the jewelry business at West Salem.

The net receipts of this year's tag day were $1,498. This is $57 more than last year's receipts, according to a report at the regular meeting of the Associated Charities last night.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The C. L. Colman Lumber company of La Crosse has received word that the storm at Preston did much damage to its lumber yards at that place. The company's yards are said to be under twenty feet of water and mud and the loss will be heavy.

George Williams who has been conducting the jewelry department in the Park Store has sold out and will go into business in Chicago.

One of the heaviest rain and wind storms that ever struck La Crosse passed over this city last evening. Many of the city streets were flooded and in places railroad tracks were washed away. The worst damage is in Root river has risen nine feet since yesterday, small buildings, bridges and everything in the way being carried off. Trains are at a standstill on the River Division of the Milwaukee road, and telegraph wires are down. The Northwestern is completely tied up by floods and washouts east and west of here. There are washouts all along the Green Bay line and on the Burlington as far as Prairie du Chien. Basements in many parts of the city are flooded and many large trees are down. A few sidewalks were carried away by water.

William Forscher, for several years in business with his brother, Adam Forscher, left this morning for Dubuque to accept a position.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The back water from the Mississippi river has reached a number of North La Crosse buildings and it will take much time to bring it up to where it was in 1885 when about seventy-five buildings were surrounded by water.

Aiken and Aiken have opened on the north side of Vine street between Second and Third an exclusive boarding stable for horses.

By next week all the saw mills will be running at night. They are all lighted with electricity. The mill of the La Crosse Lumber company has an Edison dynamo but the others have the Benton, invented by T. P. Benton of La Crosse, the electrician. Mr. Benton is now turning out first class machines and has gone into the manufacture of dynamos on an extensive scale.

Three hundred dog licenses have been taken out thus far this year. This is a very poor showing because there are at least 1,500 dogs in the city.

Three of a Kind

(By MARTHA McC. WILLIAMS)

"Did you ever really think," Bruce began pompously. Anne Maria interrupted him with her laziest laugh. "Never. Thinking is so bad for the complexion—and I haven't too much complexion—unless I go buy it."

"Anne Maria! For shame!" Aunt Massy interjected, bristling with horrified propriety. Again Anne Maria laughed, this time roughly. "You're forgetting things, Tanti. Shouldn't—not so young as you are. But I remember for both of us."

"With reason. You shut me up in the closet a whole half hour for spoiling my pink saucers—I wanted a bath for my reddish—and didn't dream it would make any difference even though Mr. Jacks was coming to court you. And he didn't do it—said he wasn't out for no pale sickly woman—and you hadn't any health certificate. I could have told him you were as hardy as a pine knot," she retorted. Miss Massy stood up almost weeping. "Please go!" she said to Bruce. "I don't know what this wicked girl—"

Oh, she is just being naughty—as spoiled children always are before company," Bruce broke in gallantly. Anne Maria turned upon him eyes of grave reproach. "Company! You're no company—not enough to deserve fried chicken," she said. "But you're always held up as the pattern of truth telling to the rest of us. How dare you discredit your reputation?"

"Where you are concerned I dare anything," Bruce said with his most impressive bow. It set Anne Maria to giggling wildly—she darted through the side door, and half a minute later was safe in her tree-house, her refuge since she was five. Bruce looked at Miss Massy doubtfully. "How ever can I tame her?" he was shaking his head. Her head also shook. "I don't know," she said stonily. "But you have got to do it. It means salvation to—both of us."

"I know," Bruce sighed. "Haven't drawn a easy breath since she came home so changed. An shan't until we are married—it is the one way out."

"You love her?" Miss Massy questioned. Bruce sighed again, saying, "Yes. And hate her like poison. She—she seems somehow to see through me as though I were made of glass—and finds only things to laugh at. Can you understand how that galls and cuts?"

Miss Massy nodded. "Same here! She has surely changed. So sweet, and biddable and confiding she was. Why did I ever let her go to Westland? I ought to have known it would wake up her wild blood, to hear about her father, see his picture—"

"Tell me—was he a great adventurer?" Bruce asked slowly. Miss Massy was silent a minute, then went on, nodding. "Judge for yourself—he made seven fortunes—and lost six of them. If he had not died when he did, there would have been no money to tempt us to the depths. He married my sister's daughter, hardly younger than myself."

"The shock of his death in that burning building—he was, trying to save an old cripple they say—really killed her, though she lingered years in a sanitarium. That's how I came by Anne Maria. She was still in arms—I have tried honestly to do right by her. But it was so easy to do otherwise—all her money in my hands—and the first I borrowed came back treble. Then I thought I should have nothing but her charity to save me from the old grinding poverty she has so much more of her own."

"His name is West," Bruce, asserted confidently. Anne Maria smiled.

erty. You know the rest—how we have risked, and won, and lost until we must keep on or lose everything, for her as well as ourselves. "If I could tell her what I had done and that it was all for myself, she would forgive me. But I can't—she would know it was mainly for you."

The last word was a groan so low and hollow it startled Bruce. He tried to speak some soothing commonplace, as though he had not understood—she would not have it so. "For you!" she repeated almost bitterly. "Of course I am a fool—not so much as I seem. Seven years older—but at first you seemed not to mind. And—and I did want to help you—to give you the chance I thought you deserved—never dreaming how things would turn—"

"Stop!" Bruce said hoarsely, his face ashen. "You shall not suffer further—whatever happens to me."

"What do you mean?" Miss Massy asked doubtfully. He braced himself, took both her hands and said slowly: "I am going straight to Anne Maria—and tell her the exact truth. If I know her, it is truth that will make us free."

"No, no! I had rather die! I could never face her! Never in the world!" Miss Massy moaned, but he was already at the door. There he turned smiling painfully at her, then went outside, his head high.

He had never dared, climbing to the tree house which sat twenty feet from earth in the crotch of a huge spreading elm. Rough steps contrived of cleats and branches led up to it. Anne Maria almost skipped over them. Bruce just breathed like a mountain climber. But he kept on, his lips set hard, though exertion had brought back wholesome color. It was no death's head that astounded Anne Maria rising painfully above the floor of her eerie, but a human being dominant with purpose.

"Sit down! No fall! Looks like you're at the last gasp," the girl cried gayly. He went near and stood upright, saying: Anne Maria—I, a great criminal pleads guilty after full confession, will you give him a suspended sentence?"

She bowed her head, too amazed for speech. Briefly he went on all through the sorry tale of misdoings, neither sparing nor excusing himself for his partner, but setting forth boldly, but with his most lucid legal ability, the ugly facts in the case. This, until he came to the next last sentence, spoken in stammers with clutching hands: "I think you must know—a ready—all this was done—for me."

Anne Maria was choking, her eyes bright with tears yet managed to say saucily: "No such thing, Sir Vanity! It was just. Opportunity that woke the gambler who lives in all of us! I know—we're three of a kind. It will be hard to forgive you two for not taking me into the big game at first. Think of the thrills I've lost—and be ashamed of yourselves."

"Sentence, please!" Bruce entreated. She held out her hand—when he did not take it, clutched his and said gallily: "The judgment of the court is—that you keep on to the end—sweet or bitter. I love risks, and mean to be equal partner. Win or lose, I shan't whine. Let's get down to earth, and powers of attorney and things. But first I must sentence myself—not to tease auntie for a whole, solid week."

"I—we—you must not be allowed," Bruce stammered.

"Allowed is good," Anne Maria flung back. "Understand sir, I allow myself to do as I like. By way of proving that, I'll tell you something very nice—I am going to marry New Year, somebody who regards my money as an excrescence—ed. "How nicely you say it. Yes, the heir presumptive of Westland, and a lot beside. So be easy in your mind over my future—and remember there are no strings of any sort on any of us three."

Bruce understood what she was too finely wrought to say—that her forgiveness carried no sort of obligation. And in that glimpse of her soul he understood that all he was gaining in this release was less than he was losing.

SPARTA HAS AUTO-CAMP

Sparta, Wis., May 19, 1922. La Crosse Tribune, La Crosse, Wis. Gentlemen:—In your paper of recent date you had a write up on Wisconsin cities having equipped camp sites for tourists.

We note that you failed to include our city in that write up, so beg to inform you that we have a camp site equipped with shelter, kitchen, tables, lights, water and free wood. Adjoining the site is a public bathing beach and just across the lake the Country club. We would appreciate having this fact mentioned in your future write ups along this line.

Sparta is on Highways 21 and 27 and the Black and Yellow Trail.

Yours very truly, GEO. H. SEIDEL, Chairman Camp Site Committee.

Summer Term begins June 6 and 13. Save time and money. Be in a good position by the time the snow flies.

May 12, 1922.

Wisconsin Business University, La Crosse, Wisconsin.

Gentlemen—I am writing to inform you that I have secured the position at the State School at Sparta. I am to begin work next Monday at $40 per month (this board, room and laundry) and with the understanding that, should I do good work, I should receive an increase in salary after the first month.

When I received your letter, I had already secured this position. It was this way: Miss Gabover, an old WBU student, wrote to me saying there was a vacancy at the State School and that they had offered her the position. As she is employed, she refused. I made up my mind to get it and went to Sparta in the afternoon. I landed the position in about ten minutes, due to the letter of recommendation which they had most undoubtedly received from you.

I wish to thank you for your help in securing this position and will gladly write you again to let you know of my progress.

Cordially yours,

MARIE FOELLMI,

Of—Bangor, Wisconsin.

With—State School, Sparta, Wisconsin.

OBJECT TO MOVIE ADVERTISING IN CHURCH JOURNAL

Decision Previously Made to Bar
Motion Picture Ads from Presbyterian Papers

DES MOINES, Iowa.—By The Associated Press.—One of the first official acts of the Rev. C. C. Hayes of Johnston, Pa., elected moderator of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America, by the 134th general assembly here Friday, was the appointment of Dr. William O. Thompson, president of Ohio State university, Columbus, as vice moderator at Saturday's session.

Following a report on the 'Presbyterian Magazine,' the official organ of the church, commissioners from the floor of the assembly objected to the presence of motion picture advertising in the columns of the official church organ.

"Does not the movie trust dominate all magazine advertising pages?" one commissioner shouted.

The Rev. Lewis S. Mudge, stated clerk of the assembly, at this point headed off any further discussion by announcing that a decision already had been reached barring all motion picture advertising from the official organ and other publications of the Presbyterian church.

"SCHOOL DAYS" — RIVOLI

Freckle-faced Wesley Barry, the inimitable movie celebrity, will grace the screen of the Rivoli Theater, today to next Wednesday, in his latest starring vehicle, "School Days," in which the community council will share to increase its fund for a visiting housekeeper for The Social Service Society.

The very mention of the words "School Days" holds an appeal for young and old, and it is said that every mother who has boys, every man who remembers his boyhood, every human being who can thrill to the joys, the disappointments, the pranks and the glory of boyhood will gloat over the trials and tribulations of Speck Brown, better known to the screen world as West Barry.

Briefly, the story centers around a small town boy who loves the old swimmin' hole and his dog, Hippo, better than anything else in the world. He meets a wealthy uncle who sends him East to get an education. Here he meets many youngsters of wealthy parents, and he finds himself out of the social swim. He is beset by many trials and tribulations, and finally he goes back home to his faithful dog and is little country sweetheart via the freight train route.

"LOST ROMANCE"—MAJESTIC

What is romance? Is the real romance of love and life found in the moonlit garden, the scent of a delicate flower, the dulcet strains of sweet music? Such, generally, is youth's impression of romance, but in William de Mille's new picture, "The Lost Romance," which is being shown at the Majestic, is revealed that genuine romance will be found elsewhere. This picture embraces an all-star cast which includes Fontaine La Rue, dainty character actress, Conrad Nagel, Jack Holt and Lois Wilson.

The story deals with two men, who fall in love with the same girl. The romance unfolds at the home of Aunt Betty, who has been disappointed in love in her younger days. The girl refuses one of the young men, an explorer, and accepts the other, a physician. After five years, the girl fails to find in her life with her husband, the romance she had hoped for. The explorer returns, the girl turns to him and the two openly declare their love. Then the child of the wedded pair disappears and in her anxiety the mother forgets her new love and with the return of her boy she awakens to the realization of what true love-romance is.

STRAND TODAY

What has been declared to be one of the most extraordinary pictures ever made, is at the Strand Theater today "God's Crucible." It is called—the screen version of Ralph Connor's novel.

The story tells of a young political refugee who flees to Winnipeg to escape his enemies, and there amid the snow-capped grandeur of the Canadian Rockies, wins fame and happiness. Those who have read the novel know that the action moves along at a swift pace from start to finish, and it is said that the picture is vastly more engrossing than the book.

CASINO TODAY

Albert Capellani, who directed "Sisters," believes that the theme of the story is one of the most important in modern life.

"In France, where I was born," said Mr. Capellani, "we have a saying that applies to 'Sisters': 'When there is no hay in the stable, the horses fight.' Cherry, a lively, happy young girl, marries without thinking much about it, Martin Lloyd, a rough lumberman, who cannot give her the luxury, or even the comfort, that she has been accustomed to in her father's simple but pleasant home. This hasty and thoughtless marriage is the cause of all the complications which result, and which make of 'Sisters' a powerful, dramatic picture.

TWO ARE KILLED IN FIGHT IN SYNAGOGUE

RIGA.—Jewish Telegraphic Agency.—Two persons were killed and four wounded in a riot in a Minsk synagogue, following an attempt by soviet

The commissaries are reported to have entered the synagogue during prayers, provoking the worshippers who tried to prevent them from carrying out the confiscation. Two of the worshippers were instantly killed and four communists seriously injured in the fight.

BRINGING UP FATHER

ST. MARY'S OVERWHELMED BY LA CROSSE NORMAL ON FRIDAY AFTERNOON BY SCORE OF 7-0

THE Normal school baseball team maintained its perfect string of victories Friday afternoon by defeating the St. Mary's college team of Winona 7 to 0 in an easy game at the fair grounds. This was the first home game for the Normalites, and a fair sized crowd of fans turned out to see the contest.

Schultz occupied the box for La Crosse in the opening frame, with Stoneman behind the bat. Gunderson went in to pitch in the sixth inning and finished the game. Schultz allowed one hit in his five innings. Gunderson was tapped twice for safeties.

TIPS FROM REAL GUIDES

"Striking at the right time is another point," said Charley Riley as he started work on the plugging job. It is for a king, at least it used to be after a day's steady work at casting. "With the plugs they don't strike soon enough and with the natural bait they strike too soon. Unless a fish hooks itself by accident when he hits the artificial plug, the majority of fishermen are not ready to strike at the right time.

You got to strike 'em the minute they hit the plug or they throw it out. I think where the fall down comes in is not practicing the transfer of the rod from the right to the left hand. Just before the plug hits the water, the rod should be stopped and while the rod is being swung from the right to the left, begin the retrieve of the plug by a backward move of the rod. This takes up the slack at the start, gives you the right position and still you have enough space to swing the rod farther back to strike. While with the live minnows they never give a fish a chance to swallow the bait.

"The bass, pike, pickerel or walleye generally takes but a small hook on the live bait and striking at that time before he gets a chance to take it away for a short run just puts the bait out of his mouth. I say let 'em swallow it. They ought to at least have the pleasure, anyway; then give a quick sharp strike with a wrist movement. But quite a few of the boys seem to think they got to pump the fish clean out of the water. At least, that's the way it looks to me when I see them give a long swinging sweep of the arm to the strike."

NATIONS OF WORLD INVITED TO DAIRY CONGRESS IN U. S.

WASHINGTON.—Invitations asking 150 nations, colonies and dependencies to send representatives to the world's dairy congress, which is to be held in an American city yet to be decided in October, 1923, were sent out Friday by the state department in the name of President Harding. A resolution recently adopted by congress directed the president to issue the invitations.

The congress will be the first international dairy meeting ever held in the United States and is expected to be the largest gathering of its kind ever held. Cities which have filed with the world's dairy congress association applications for acting as host to the congress, include Syracuse, N. Y., St. Paul and Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Boston, and Washington, D. C. The national dairy association will hold its annual show the week following the meeting of the congress.

WHEN YOU SCORE A BALL GAME REMEMBER

If the batsman with one or no one out hits a fly ball that is caught but results in a run being scored on the catch, the batsman is credited with a sacrifice hit. If the fly ball is missed, but in the judgment of the scorer, would have resulted in a run had it been caught, the batsman is likewise credited with a sacrifice hit.

NELSONS VS. CALEDONIA MONTAGUES VS. BANGOR

NELSONS

Fans will witness the Nelson ball club in action for the second time Sunday afternoon, when Caledonia will play the locals a visit at Cope land park.

It was formally announced by the Nelson management Saturday that Krause, left fielder of the season of 1920, has again joined the club for this year. Because of his injured ankle sustained in the early innings of the game last Sunday, it was not definitely announced whether he would take active part tomorrow. It is the intention to use Krause as a utility pitcher.

The local club on Saturday was held as a strong favorite to cop from the Gophers tomorrow. Schultz and Stoneman will be the locals' battery while Jaeger and Till will be the principals for Caledonia.

MONTAGUES

The Montagues are scheduled to continue activities out of town Sunday afternoon, clashing with the Bangor aggregation in the third game of the season.

J. E. Nickels, manager of the Montague club, announced Saturday that Gunderson will again perform on the mound for the locals, while Franzini, of Genoa last year, will be at the receiving end. Gunderson's excellent showing against Shotton of Ashton here last week was a revelation to fans. Franzini was one of the leading clouters of the Genoa aggregation last year and his stick work will add to the strength of the local club.

It is rumored that the Bangor club has been reorganized with numerous annexations which will add materially to its strength.

BAMBINO WITH HIS MIGHTY WAR CLUB REINSTATED TODAY HOME RUN RIVALS TO MEET

NEW YORK.—Babe Ruth, his mightiest war club polished for a belated home run drive, was ready Saturday to come back into the fold.

An early rush for the turnstiles that rivalled world's series days and a sell out of reserved seats gave proof that the Polo grounds would be thronged to the limit.

But even the presence of the babe could not dim the luster of other attractions for the occasion—the St. Louis Browns, generally considered the Yankees' most dangerous rivals, and their slugging sensation, Ken Williams.

Williams, with an early start on Ruth, has eleven homers to his credit, a substantial margin even in a race with so formidable an opponent as the Bambino. The Yank star has not given up his ambition to beat the record of 59 he set last season.

Ruth, incidentally, was to resume his duties as captain, for the first time in a championship game, his appointment having been made during the spring training trip.

Landis Approves

CHICAGO, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel of the New York Yankees were reinstated by Commissioner Landis Saturday.

The home run king is eligible to start his drive for 1922 slugging honors in Saturday afternoon's game with the St. Louis Browns at New York.

A telegram applying for reinstatement from Ruth and Meusel was received at the commissioner's office about 8:50 a. m. The judge was not there, but his secretary, Leslie O'Connor, had received his instructions last night and promptly sent telegrams to Ruth and Meusel reading as follows: "Your reinstatement application granted, effective immediately. Signed, K. M. Landis."

A third telegram was sent Umpires Chilly and Owens reading: "Ruth and Meusel reinstated, effective immediately. Eligible for today's game. K. M. Landis."

The applications for reinstatement of Ruth and Meusel were identical. They read as follows: "I hereby respectfully apply for immediate reinstatement to enable me to play in the game here today, Saturday, May 20."

S&H INDOOR TEAM SCORES VICTORY OVER BATAVIAN

The S and H Indoor baseball team scored their third consecutive win of the season Thursday afternoon, when they annihilated the Batavian National Bank team 25-8. "The work of Frank Smith, on the mound for the cigar store players kept the bankers worried and they were unable to launch their hits when needed. Time and again he tightened up with the bases full and the bankers went out in 1, 2, 3 order. Every S. and H. player crossed the plate.

BADGER JUDGE TO RULE ON OPENING BASEBALL SCANDAL

Milwaukee Court Takes Under Advisement Felsch Plea for Comiskey Examination

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Judge John J. Gregory in circuit court here Saturday took under advisement the application of Owner Happy Felsch, expelled member of the Chicago White Sox, for a court examination of Charles Comiskey, president of the Sox, in Felsch's damage suit against the club. Judge Gregory informed attorneys that he will give a written decision soon on the question of whether he can, under the law, order such an examination on the affidavit of Felsch on file with the court and will at the same time limit the examination, if ordered, to questions in the affidavit pertinent to the issue at stake. The wording of the judge's remarks led auditors to believe that the judge will rule against the opening up of the baseball scandal history of the White Sox which Felsch's attorneys announced in court was the main issue of the suit.

The HOME GARDEN

What is Home without a Garden?

A NEW TYPE OF GLADIOLI

The new primulinum hybrid gladioli are the hardest of the entire gladiolus family and should be used for the earliest planting. The bulbets often survive the winter and come up in the spring, especially if the soil is light and well drained. The mature bulbs are not so hardy, but will brave more unfavorable weather than the other varieties, which are farther from the type through frequent hybridization.

The primulinum gladioli have loose spikes and are more graceful than the older classes and the prevailing color is yellow with many exquisite shades in pink, salmon, orange, buff and ranging into scarlets.

The colors are all soft, reminding one of the soft shades in some of the late tulips.

For the earliest gladiolus planting use the primulinum type. Planted in mid-April they will give bloom by July and can then be followed by the more robust types.

The use of a light sprinkling of nitrate on the lawn is the best and quickest way to produce a luxuriant stand of blue-green sward early in the season. The action of the nitrate of soda may be noted if a lump of the nitrate is dropped on the lawn. In a short time it will be observed that there will be a tuft of thicker, ranker growth about this spot, much resembling the growth in pastures about old droppings.

The main design in sprinkling nitrate upon the lawn should be an even distribution.
